Preface

IN LOOKING over the history of the Class of 1913, the fact that impressed the Editors of the LEGENDA as being truly distinctive of us as a class, was the number of changes in the academic and social life of the college which had been effected in the four short years of our course. We have gathered these together and now present them without comment, for we feel that they speak for themselves.

The Arrival

The fatal day, the first great change has come,
And long expected college days begun.
The brakeman haileth loudly: "Wellesley Farms!"
They start, a prey to feverish alarms.
The brakeman singeth blithely: "Wellesley Hills!"
Suspense reduces them to quakes and chills.
But next the oracle cries: "Wel-les-lee!"
Scarce have they strength to seize their bags and flee.
So 1913 landed—great event!
Appearing small, but charged with vast portent.
The joyful crowd seize her in wild embrace
While rivals struggle for her new suitcase.
In triumph 1913 swarms through town
Like bees in a new beehive settling down;
Like bees, each drone and worker hunts her cell,
But of the first look of those rooms—O, well!
Soon ardent friends drop in with busy clack
To tell the news and "watch you all unpack";
They buzz of lumpy cots and midnight oil,
Of quizzes, math., and unremitting toil;
But all dire presage sounds so far away—
A Senior asks you to the great C. A.!
Never a class so fêted with attention!
(Later with flunk notes fated—but no mention).
Music and concerts, proms, and serenade,
Plays and group-games, gym., and the fire-brigade;
All these are promised for the freshman's pleasure,
To show how college values her new treasure.
And well do famous speakers at C. A.
Tell how they long awaited this great day
And rally all of Wellesley to one cheer
Of glorious welcome that '13 is here.

The Society Congress

(From a 1913 Freshman Standpoint)

Our aim is to be just, and yet it is evident that we were the prime factor in another momentous change. When our great body of proletariats, 400 strong, scattered to survey the campus, the first things we noticed were six aristocratic bungalows tucked away unobtrusively in hollows. Upon our inquiries, nods and "Sh-ush-es" went 'round. Yet it did not take us long to learn that these were the lairs of privilege, the dens of monopoly. Social graces and closest friendships were "cornered" in these six little bandboxes.

Then it was that we, the proletariats, awoke into consciousness and power. We, the Class of 1913, inaugurated a revolution. Led by older heads, our ardent young reformers roused the spirit of democracy from her dream of fancied security. Some nameless champion hurled a socialistic thunderbolt through the News' editorial page. At that battle-cry, all Wellesley united to the call of social democracy.

In praise of the privileged be it said that they were the first to respond, the first to suggest an "orgy of self-sacrifice." Needless to say we, along with the unprivileged, rallied to the support of the "trust-busters."

The impetus once given, social revolution went on without our assistance. Meetings were held and the old régime fell, as was testified by the jaded nerves of upper classmen who suddenly ceased taking the trouble of introducing us to their friends. We, too, held a class meeting and declared in favor of the eligibility of every highly intelligent or prominent citizen to social distinction and the right to wear a decoration. It is hard to speak of the self-sacrifice of stifled curiosity when we forewent "open houses" till Junior year. Still it is 1910, 1911, and 1912 who made the greatest sacrifices in their relinquishment of much that was dear for the sake of a larger democracy, and it is to them we owe the most glorious part of our reforms.

May Day

(Apologies to Tennyson)

Garlands to right of them,
Slickers to cover them,
Leaders in front of them,
Marched they in silence.
Singing with all their might,
Flower basket clutched tight,
Up to the Backwoodsman,
In the pale dawn of light
Marched the green freshmen.

Queens to rule over them,
Children to play with them,
Clowns to make sport of them,
Bumping and jostling;
As the damp evening fell,
They, who had marched so well
Under the May Day spell,
Went from the old gym doors
Back to the Vill to dwell,
All that was left of them—
Left of green freshmen.

When will the glory fade
Of their May Day parade?
They made no blunders.
Think of the dark, wet day,
Pity the damp array,
Plucky green freshmen.

The Tale of the Class Scrap-Book

This is fearful ground, and we must tread lightly. It was in the early days when "we as a class" were more interested in "us as a class" than in anything else. Some very far-seeing member of our body (having in mind, no doubt, the delectation of the future class baby) suggested that we have a class scrap-book. Of class scraps we had none—so some failed to perceive the function of the scrap-book at first.

So we began by taking pictures of ourself at all periods of growth, and pasting in little commemorative notices of "baby's first walk," when she carried green lanterns up to the campus, and made much noise after the traditional method of infants. Then we had notices of "baby's first row" in her new boat, when she broke her bottle on the bow, and threw it away forever; baby's Christmas present from the Dean, coming rather late, in a blue envelope, and not at all appreciated by the ungrateful child, etc.

Never did the shades of Cosines or Maclaurin disappear from the sight and memory of the elect at Midyears any more quickly than our beloved record-book the second year. It seemed to die a natural death with shower-baths and high-school banners at the end of Sophomore year.

I have heard of those who surreptitiously destroy the records of their infantine progress kept by fond guardians. But I?—Do I believe it? Never! Rather would I believe that 1913 was beaten at forensic burning—which is, in the language of Sophomore year, reductio ad absurdum.

LEGENDS

Indoor Meet

In the year that Halley's comet so grossly disappointed the world at large, our own particular blow fell. Not as a comet, but as a thunderbolt from the depths of Mary Hemenway Hall came the decree that all must be beautiful whether that was their natural inclination or not. We hied us to the gym and long and assiduously did we work. It was not all pleasant, and for the most part we were rather unwilling in our efforts. There are other joys in life beside running from classes to gym work, being put through shower baths like so many automatons, and then being turned out into the dark, cold afternoon to scramble home to dress for dinner. For some people this routine would not even be a joy of the minor sort, but to the faithful it was a path towards a definite goal and, when the time for reckoning came, the faithful were rewarded.

Sophomores, as we were, we staunchly marched onto the floor. No thought of victory was with us, for we had been chastened and humbled for so long by cold showers and fear of cuts being counted. But as only the strong deserve the prize, so 1913 firmly went forth to battle and won the first great contest in her career.

LEGENDS

The News and Magazine Combination

It was in the spring of our Sophomore year. As far as eye could see there was nothing further to be reformed, except possibly the deplorable speed of College Hall elevator.

Suddenly it occurred to someone that the News, the vehicle and mouthpiece of all the reform movements—that mysterious word of four letters which seemed for divers serious individuals with pad and pencil to be the open sesame to side-doors at the barn—might welcome a little attention on its own account. There were even reported to be some in the college who did not realize that the News, besides having three square inches of window-space in its office and a stool for the editor, owned a typewriter. Clearly something had to be done to impress upon the mind of the community its existence.

As for the Magazine, that indeed was a name to conjure with. To appear in its list of contents was an entrance into the Elysian Fields of art. News and Magazine in those days were each supplied from the same family exchequer. The News was a businesslike sheet, whose only fault was such an intricacy of folding that one usually had to retire to her own room and stand on her head to read page 2. The Magazine was an aesthetic folder, for which it was necessary to employ a hairpin to bare its treasures to the world.

Some of us subscribed for one, some for another; it depended on whether our tastes were parliamentarian or literary. A few public spirited ones subscribed for both with the alumnae.

The plan was simple, and really the outcome of a rare sense of newspaperdom which had determined to reduce its staff by a competitive system. Why not give them the News once a week in aesthetic garb and add a few bits of literary lore to the monthly number. (We claim this idea as entirely original, and feel no debt to Mr. Lyman A—.), added to which is the fact of a saving of $ .50 yearly to the public-spirited, and only one subscription for which to dun. Besides all this, the crowning and compelling fact of knowing now that our free presses and Parliament of Fools, like Midyears, are always with us, and one sees why the only thing for college to say was,

"Let me not to the marriage of true minds Admit impediment".

The Inauguration

The Inauguration of Ellen Fitz Pendleton, M.A., Litt.D., as President of Wellesley College, took place on Thursday, October the nineteenth, nineteen hundred and eleven. First in the order of the exercises was the formation of the Academic Procession in College Hall, at ten o'clock. The procession marched from College Hall, past the lake and the library, to Houghton Memorial Chapel, between two rows formed of the undergraduates of the college; the Seniors wearing caps and gowns, the members of the underclasses in white, each wearing a badge of her class color. The order of the Academic Procession was as follows: The President of the Board of Trustees and the Surviving Founder of the College; the Vice-President of the Board of Trustees and the President of the College; the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Representatives of the State and of the Town, the Trustees, Delegates from Educational Institutions, the Faculty, the Executive Board of the Alumnae Association, Delegates from Alumnae Organizations and the Executive Board of the Student Government Association. The honor of taking part in the Inauguration of President Pendleton was a fitting culmination of the privileges that have been granted to our Student Government Association.

At eleven o'clock the Inauguration Exercises began in the Chapel. The Invocation was given by the Vice-President of the Board of Trustees, the Right Reverend William Lawrence, Bishop of Massachusetts; then followed the Induction of the President by the President of the Board of Trustees, Samuel Billings Capen, and the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, Mrs. Pauline A. Durant. After the Response of the President a hymn was sung and then followed three addresses: the first, in behalf of the Faculty by the Acting Dean of the College, Miss Angie Clara Chapin; the second, in behalf of the Alumnae by the President of the Alumnae Association, Mrs. Frances Scudder Williams; and the third, in behalf of the students by the President of the Student Government Association, Miss Anna Katherine Bingham. After the singing of a second hymn, came the Inaugural Address by Miss Pendleton and, at last, the singing of "Alma Mater," and a Benediction by Bishop Lawrence.

At half past two o'clock in the afternoon, after a luncheon in honor of the Delegates at College Hall, there was an organ recital in Memorial Chapel. Then followed addresses by four of the Delegates; President Lowell of Harvard University, President Faunce of Brown University, President Taylor of Vassar College and President King of Oberlin College.

At half past four, President Pendleton received the guests of the college at the Farnsworth Art Museum. This Reception completed the day.

The Backwoodsman

(Apologies to Wordsworth)

I wandered pensively along
By College Hall upon the hill,
When all at once I saw a throng
Wailing loud in accents shrill,
Since he was put beneath the ban
They've taken away our only man.

Continuous as the hordes that spy
Around our doors forensic days,
They raised a never-ending cry,
And this the burden of their lays,
Since he was put beneath the ban
They've taken away our only man.

The aqueduct is far away
And they have laid him deep;
But always in the month of May
His weary ghost comes back to weep;
For he laments as spirits can
That they should steal our only man.

And often in our deepest woe,
In vacant or in pensive mood,
When manly thoughts must perforce go,
This is the bliss of solitude—
Since he returns as spirits can
They ne'er can steal our only man.

Student Government Meeting, Point System, Social Schedule

There are other changes that have gone to lighten the monotony of 1913's history; the most momentous being the permission to hold Student Government Meetings during regular class appointments. This has lent to our government not only a new dignity but has made its meetings accessible to every member.

The object of the revolution in the point system was to distribute the work evenly in each semester and to provide fewer chances for any one girl to carry more than her share of outside responsibilities. In concordance with this system, the dramatic points were more carefully evaluated and their duration was definitely indicated.

More or less in pursuance of this idea of systematizing the time for work and play, the new Social Schedule was evolved. Since this change began with 1913's entrance into the community, we feel that we have not sufficient perspective to deal with this subject dispassionately and fairly.

Speed and Style!

There is speed and speed, but 1913 has the real class. Rest assured we knew it long before crew competition! We set our pace on the rope fire escapes early in our career, and so swift was that stride that it took us through Gym in one year. Strong and beautiful we emerged and speedier than ever. The pace grew wilder about forensic time, and they do say there were stretches along the road where we exceeded even the Non-Academic Committee's speed limit. On top of this, crew competition was simple. We walked or rather rowed off with the prize.

Although speed is our strong point "we got style all the while." Much to 1912's dismay we showed them both in baseball, and so good was our example that Jake Stahl thought fit to follow it this fall. The World's Champions are at present living in a halo of reflected glory. But their contest was a midget affair compared to the battle in which 1913 showed 1912 how real baseball is played.

The Conflagration Instituted By Marcus Tullius Josephine Cicero

Marcus Tullius Josephine Cicero, being about to consign forever to the eager flames his oration against Lavinius Edith Catiline Brutus, and being hotly pursued by the aforesaid Catiline Brutus, armed with acetylene search lights, whistles, automobiles, and dire conspiracies, betook himself to a glade, and finding it pre-occupied, hied himself to the next with the same success; passing in this manner through several beautiful sylvan scenes. The battle raged widely. Finally a funeral pyre was raised and the populace, lightly clad, gathered about with dire incantations. The dogs of war were leashed; no Catiline Brutus about; all was ghostly quiet while the mystic rites were administered. Only the breezes knew whither and whence the ashes blew. Suddenly Catiline Brutus, let down from the upper heavens by quiz ropes, inquired if sufficient time had elapsed to burn that noble monument of Roman letters. Whereupon Marcus Tullius Josephine Cicero, being about to make a détour around the paint mill swamp, replied tersely, "Burned tu, Bruté."

Thus the curtain falls forever; not only upon Marcus Tullius Josephine Cicero and Lavinius Edith Catiline Brutus, but upon all others who, possessed of distorted minds, strive to destroy those masterpieces which they have previously built up by the sweat of their brows.

IN MEMORIAM

"To live in hearts we leave behind
Is not to die." CAMPBELL—Hallowed Ground

Margaret Dixon
To one who with us works
Tennyson
It is with gratitude for all her Glorious giving of time and effort and rich personality that 1913 acknowledges the Margaret Dixon Memorial Fund given and dedicated by her family to her memory It was our great good fortune to be among her class mates and to feel in some degree the strength and generosity of an influence that is to day perhaps more potent than ever for
Thou hast left behind
Powers that will work for thee
Wordsworth

The Rime of the Rally

It was the political rally,
And was held upon the green.
The procession wound for many a mile,
And never the like was seen.

The candidates were flanked by signs
Illuminated bright;
And each a legend bore to prove
Its candidate was right.

"The Quad is square and so is Taft"
So read the merry signs:
"For Plebs get Debs" and "Save our Sons,"
"Forsake the Crimson wines."

The band is met, the platform set;
Mayst hear the merry din;
Each raved against the other planks,
And all expect to win.

He holds them with his glittering eye—
The suffragettes stood still,
All listened like a Monday Class;
The Bull Moose hath his will.

And this one freely spoke of grass
And tariffs, meals and books,
And promised several things
That spring from Lyman A— Outlooks.

And now there came both beast and bird,
They were a motley band;
And he had brought them from afar
And tamed them with his hand.

He holds them with his gleaming teeth—
"All of you lie" quoth he;
"I am the only man who knows
How to run this wild countree!"

And then a Needham farmer quoth
That meals and trolley tour
Were far beyond reformer's hands,
And only Debs could cure.

And yet again the heavens rang
With Prohibition's lay,
And Chafin's cry that Stone was dry,
And he would save the day.

Water, water, everywhere,
The listening mob did shrink;
Water, water, everywhere,
And not a drop to drink.

He holds them with his pudgy hand—
"I had a friend," quoth he,
"He's gone! the elephant and I
Hold up the whole partee."

The scholar, too, in cap and gown,
Prayed for a chance to prove
That only Democratic rule
Insures the peaceful dove.

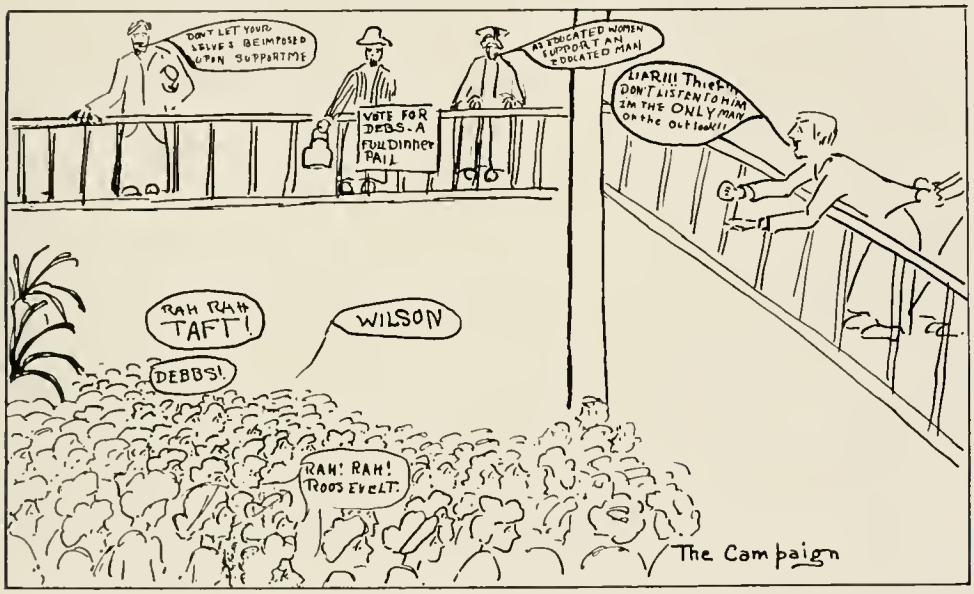
The gym-trained mob would break their ranks.
Yet they cannot choose but hear;
And then spake on that also-ran,
Bryan, the financier.

"God save thee, now, my countrymen,
From the fiends that plague thee thus!—
Old Uncle Sam is with you yet
And will save you from the Trusts."

The men were cheered, the platform cleared,
Merrily did we go
Up to the Hill, down to the Vill,—
We had seen the whole ——— show.

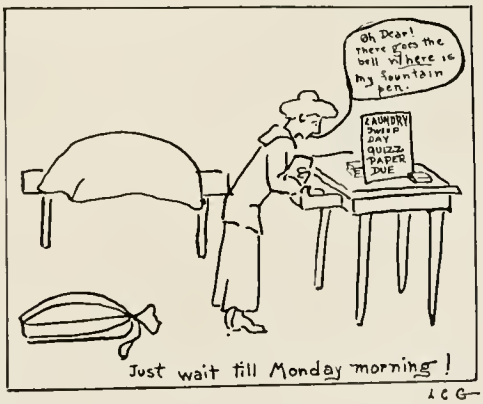
The First Time

Prize offered for the best title.



The Campaign

Saturday afternoon is all right, BUT——



Just wait till Monday morning!

Ode to Terpsichore

(The Senior Promenade)

O Terpsichore, thy votive maidens hear!
With trailing gowns, long gloves and fair bouquets,
We kneel to hymn thy name with fervent praise,
Long-sought, that granted us our wish most dear.
What ecstasy it was to view that floor,
Whirling with colors, and to catch the beat
Of rhythmic steps, and hark the violin.
Ah, long-forbidden fruit!—to taste, how sweet!
Beneath thy sheltering wing, O Terpsichore,
The long-excluded swallowtail crept in.

In stately barges, led by chaperons,
(Each armed with an electric bulb to flare,
Which flashed around—to see we all were there);
So jolted we along o'er stock and stones,
Until we reached the garnered festal door
And greeted those who brought these things to be,
Our godmothers, who helped our cause to win.
'Tis them we praise, 'tis them—yet more to thee—
For 'neath thy sheltering wing, O Terpsichore,
The long-excluded swallowtail crept in.

O Terpsichore, how stately was thy dance,
Measured, slow-moving—on it hung the fate
Of future generations, for in state
The lonely watchers sat aloft. Their glance
Meant life or death to thee, O Terpsichore;
But ah, they smiled. The victory was won!
Surely such joyful revel was no sin.
A great new era hath our dance begun,
For 'neath thy sheltering wing, O Terpsichore,
The long-excluded swallowtail crept in.

*Food for Freshmen

For 1913 and all succeeding classes

We're sorry for you, Freshmen! It surely is unjust
That every brand new chafing dish should have to stand and rust;
But think about your grievances—we know you have a lot—
Chafe over them and you will see how friction keeps things hot.
